_____ On Monday morning, somebody phoned to say the lift didn't work. Workers immediately came and repaired it.

_____ When the doors opened, Mrs Poor came out, after 67 hours in the lift. But when she left the car park, the attendant didn't believe her story, and made her pay extra.

1 Mrs Moira Poor, aged 69, got into the lift at the Auckland City car park in New Zealand last Friday afternoon. She didn't get out again until Monday morning.

_____ She slept on the floor, and continued shouting all day Saturday and Sunday, but nobody came.

_____ I was very worried when she didn't come home on Friday,' said Mrs Poor's husband. 'I phoned the police, but we couldn't find her anywhere.'

_____ A few days later the city council gave her $2,100 and free parking in Auckland for life.

_____ When she got into the lift, Mrs Poor was carrying only a handbag. After a few seconds, the lift stopped between floors. She shouted and shouted, and rang the alarm, but nobody heard her.
